授業概要	Semester 1: The Place of Language – For the past three years, we have worked on your communication skills and developed your research, discussion, and presentation abilities. We have also worked on task-based projects together. This is the year when we put all of your skills together for you to really USE your English. In this Global English course, we will look at English more as a tool than something to be learned. We will look at the world around us—past, present, and future, with a particular focus on current events and issues. In fact, each class will begin with a look at current events in the world. We will also look at what English is, and how the cultures that use it have adapted it to their needs. If you take this class, please be prepared to research, collaborate, and share what you learn. This class is absolutely English only. Note: Parts of this course may be held online.
学生が達成すべき行動目標	Students taking this course will focus on achieving these “I can…” goals: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - I can look at what is happening in the world around us, and discuss and analyse what we see. - I can understand the part that English plays in the many cultures of the world. - I can develop my research skills in order to gain a greater understanding of the issues we discuss in class.
